Latest Stuff

The first trial gigs as a 3 piece are done and dusted. We now know that we can do it like that if we need to. It was a bit strange at first but with a bit of tweaking we think it sounded good and you folks that came to see us agreed. The concept of a keyboard player hasn't quite worked out as we hoped so I have grasped the nettle and I am looking to re-introduce Mr MIDI. That's a special if not cumbersome electronic device to trigger keyboard sounds from my guitar. Expect some accordion (my favourite), string pads, organs and general other electronic noise paraphernalia to hit you from our side of the stage in future. Nice!

Introducing "madfiddler"

Mr "madfiddler", aka Mark Knight, now that he's actually living quite local to us, has kindly agreed to step into the fray and join us for live gigs. Unfortunately, some numpty went into the back of his car while he was stationary and put him out of action for a month or so and our meeting was delayed. Nevertheless, he's been learning our songs and he's now been down to rehearse with us.

Guess what? It sounds fuckin' ace! Mark has opened up some songs for us with his own unique sound and style that has put a different edge on things that me and the boys think sounds just kickin'. So, expect to see him when you next come to see us. He has a wicked purple (his fave colour it seems) Flying V Fiddle he is threatening to use when gigging with us...now that is very Rock 'n' Roll! If you want to learn more about Mark he has his own website and forum, pop along and say hi at www.madfiddler.co.uk.

Live Album

Yup, it's kinda finished and we will still be seeking to put it up as a download, not free alas, but by pay per track on our sister site "Zeitgeist". Purchase details will be posted on our "DOSHSWAP" page (shop) when it's on site.
